Synopsis

Was it an earthquake? A meteor? Or something else entirely? Running from a marriage proposal in Seattle, Dana Ingram returns to her parents' farm in Western Colorado for a two-week vacation in Paradox Valley. Only a couple of days into it, however, a small earthquake leaves them without power. Cars won't start, batteries don't work, and cell phones are useless. When a Black Hawk helicopter vanishes off of radar, Captain Corey Conaway is sent in to locate it and its crew - all while keeping the disappearance out of the media. When she meets Dana and her cousin, Butch, Corey solicits their help in the search. But as they travel on horseback through the rugged and remote Paradox Valley, what they stumble upon soon has them running for their lives.

Customer Reviews

Well this was different. Gerri Hill's latest takes her supernatural series to a whole new level mixing paranormal, 1950's sci-fi and a gentle romance which is definitely not the main storyline. Dana has run home to her parents' farm in Western Colorado to escape an extremely premature marriage proposal. When everybody feels the earth tremble they assume it's a small earthquake, and life goes on - except they have no power - the cars won't start and even the batteries are dead. A military helicopter is sent to investigate and goes off radar, causing the CO to send in a squad of troops, and his General to send in Captain Conaway. When she meets up with Dana and her lifelong friend Butch, Conway quickly enlists their help, and their horses, to aid in her mission. So Gerri Hill sets the scene for the most "out there" of her spooky paranormal series to date. The humour and the great writing remain the same. The far "fetched" storyline and outcome continue in the vein of Keepers of the Cave™ and Weeping Walls™, but takes on a whole new level of scary movie tension. The characters in this are well done. Danna, Butch and the Captain are complex and interesting, and the addition of an elderly neighbour to the posse adds a lovely twist. There is a large supporting cast, all drawn with Ms Hill's sharp observation of human nature and behaviour, however brief their appearance. There is also the most intelligent and loyal dog - definitely the hero of the whole show. My only criticism is aimed at the classification - this book does not belong in the romance category. Yes there is a slow burn attraction and gentle romance, but it is decidedly the sub plot; the characters involved are too busy with the paranormal .
