Synopsis

Prime Members can download this book for FREE on your Kindle device This humorous, delightful story began as a writing assignment in Rachel's 6th grade English class. Fast forward three years to the present, Rachel has transformed "Rugmo and the Other Side of the Fence" to "A Wolf Pup's Tale" a beautifully illustrated, enchanting children's book. It is a story about a young wolf pup, whose curiosity leads him to discovery, danger, and friendship. Rachel Yu, 14 years old, is the author of "Dragon's Alphabet Soup", "A Dragon Named Dragon" and "Fly High, Hammie Hawk." She has always loved reading and daydreaming. Rachel is currently residing, happily ever after, in a cozy den.

Customer Reviews

I bought this on a whim for my 7-year-old daughter, because she loves anything with wolves or puppies. I was afraid it might be too young for her but figured what the heck. She LOVED it! She raved about how much she loved the pictures and how great the story was--then she read it again several more times. It's one of her new favorites for killing time on my Kindle. I recommend it!

All my kids from ages 4 to 11 loved this book cuz it was cute and they love animals. The vocabulary is a little difficult for young ones to read but for an adult to read to them it was great for all ages.

I liked the story and it was just the right length for my 4-year-old who is slowly making transition from purely picture books to books with more text. The illustrations are fantastic as well. Well done; this was a great buy.

My 5-year-old grandson didn't like the story so that's all I can judge by. In fact he wouldn't even let me finish reading it to him. I thought it was cute and the pics were nicely done, but the child for whom I purchased it just didn't cotton to it. Thus I really can't give it a higher rating.

I agree that this is a well chosen bed time story. It has just the right length for a bed time story and the perfect tone to keep a child in a bedtime mind set or get them to that point. I also liked that there was a substantial amount of writing on each page. That also helps for bedtime. A good "there's no place like home" story.

I'm constantly on the lookout for books for my boys. I think they may like this one. It's a quick read for short attention spans but also something one of them can read on his own, then add to his book log.

This is a cute story with a little bit of suspense and a happy ending. Perfect for our 4-year-old at bedtime. The formatting is good because there are pictures and text on each page so he can look at a picture while we read him the story. I like how Rachel Yu uses good vocabulary throughout the story to give kids great examples of rich language.

This is a sweet story and at the end focuses on teaching a child that adventuring out alone away from home is not recommended. This little puppy discovered that there are many dangers away from the safety of his mother and family. The story is sweetly told by a young girl in fact and here she shows her talent for telling a quick tale so skillfully. The artist who illustrated this book makes it so visually exciting that even an adult would love to read and see it. I loved it and I am a grand mom.
